and every birthday. Even when I was bad.

I remember all the whippings I received for swearing to God, for skipping school, trying drugs, thinking I was grown. I remember your exact words, "Go get my belt."

I remember the shopping sprees every year for new school
"clothes" the week before school started, so I'll be one of the coolest kids in school. I had lunch money everyday. A new pair of shoes at least every 3 months. The tutor classes you enroll me in once a week.

You were at all my games. Basketball, baseball and football. I can't remember a night we didn't have any lights or a day I went I didn't eat. You raise me by yourself.
My faults and failures are mine alone to be held responsible for. You can't blame yourself for me. You taught me what honor, love, commitment and the meaning of family is. Momma, so don't blame yourself for me. Be proud to be the

Today is only special cause of what it mean to you. The long hours of excruciating pain you suffered in labor to bring your mom one into the world. Have I told you how I love you. How hearing your voice calms my nerves. How when you touch me, you erase all my pain away. How my thoughts and memories of you block out the storm that's brewing where your smile shines and brighten my day. The scent of your sex, your womanly essences is intoxicating and have me fiending, waiting and praying for my next fix. I know sometimes you question my loyalties. Might feel insecure to the other women who might get my attention. Baby girl, you the only one who makes me feel the way I do. So I tell you...

Happy Mothers Day, to the mother of my unborn child...

Look in the mirror baby, pass the flaws you think you see. Pass the memories of the faults you no you made. Look to your inner core. See what I see to make me proud to crown you my Queen. The love and loyalty you show to your mother and family. The sacrifices you make to make sure your love ones aren't in need. The compassion and generosity you show to the weak, helpless and needy. The strength you show to so against me and point out my intentions. But most importantly the love and loyalty you showed a "G" to stand by me while I do this prison sentence. Baby Girl, Wifey ... Today, being a day that symbolizes love, I felt like taking the time out to really help you understand how much I love you. How much I appreciate you. Love is a feeling so it's time we had a heart to heart conversation.

I have searched through a sea of faces; have seen the glitter and the gleam. This taught me that beauty is skin deep. I have dated beautiful women whose only objective was for the money or the fame.

Digging through the dirty pits, I found cubic colonies of women. Women with fake laughs, fake tears, and feelings. Their faces shining from the artificial glow of cosmetics and designer clothes. The Bonnie look alike, the Coco look alike, but none of them had that.

We encourage same sex marriages with pride, promote abortions and stress criminals should not have a second chance. I thought America was a country built on morals, but in the American dream a lot of people overlooked all the kids who did not have food to eat.

Look what we fight over, the President making it right for minimum wage workers to have a right to health coverage, you denying criminals out of prison jobs, but screaming "punish him" when you force him to rob.

Care of you'll by herself. Don't add to the pain. Relieve some of it. Be what I'm not. The man of the family. I apologize for leaving these big shoes for you to fill. But I must let you no. A real man is a man who provide food, shelter, security, and love to his family. And for abandoning you.

I apologize Son!

"Son, I cry to!

I no it's been so long ago, but I still can remember the first time you cried. I watch you rant and rave at the world. I watch you carry a chip on your shoulder like it's you against the world.

But son! What about me? What about all the nights I stayed up dreading a call from the police telling me my son is dead.

Son, I cry too!

You hold your head up high for the crimes you committed. How do I suppose to hold my head up to pick you up getting suspended from school. How am I suppose to hold my head coming to bail you out time and time again?

I ask myself where did I go wrong. Go back ——

"Emotional Scars"

I have emotional scars that's imbedded in my soul.
Scars so painful, they break my heart.
They shattered my confidence. Broke my pride. Got tears Filling the lid of my eyes. Why ??

I ask myself:

When I told you I love you and gave you my all. I was blind and ignorant to repercussions of losing somebody who don't love you back.

I'm hurt inside from my emotional scars. In shell-shock to all the lies, heartbreak from my cries.

I desire to be treated like a Queen, but when I look at my emotional scars. They tell me it isn't worth another try. So if I put my trust in you, IF I open up ->昂 turn

Dear Family, I forgive you.

Dear Family, If you reading this letter or card, I want you to know I forgive you. You probably asking yourself why do I forgive you, and what have you done. And if you don’t no. That’s why I forgive you. I forgive you for not trying to understand my position. You let society prejudices and laws look and treat me like an outsider instead of the family I am. You let society prejudices and treat me like an outsider, instead of the family I am. You let and laws look and treat me like an outsider, instead of the family I am. Concrete prisons, miles of distant highways, prison rules and regulations dictate & justify the neglect you show. The neglect I feel.

Cause I’m in prison. I deserve to be abandoned and forgotten. I deserve to go through a struggle that isn’t meant for a human being. But originally design to hold animals. If you visit a dog kennel, you’ll witness how the dogs are housed side by side in cages. Visit prisons and you’ll see how we housed side by side in concrete cages looking out of cell bars. They got a saying in public, Give a dog a bone. So I can buy me a bone. I forgive you for not thinking of me as even a pet, and send me to. So I can buy me a bone from commissary. I see people all the time on tv, buying they pets, shoes and clothes.

Dear Family,

I forgive you, and apologize for asking for money to buy me a new pair of shoes, a new outfit once a year. Or try to contact an old friend to have somebody to talk to, or correspond with to help keep my mind out the everyday life. Enjoy yourself. Go shopping. Go out on a date. Take care of the homeless. Enjoy life with the family and friends you have around you on a everyday bases. I apologize for knowing but not accepting I’m out of sight, out of mind.

Dear Family, I forgive you!!

much love, much respect

"The voice of the Ghetto"
The love, protection to relieve you of all your burdens and be your man. Is what I wish I could give you.

But since I'm here locked in this cell, I give you me whole heartly. My mind, soul, spirit, and heart. My ear to hear your problems and listen to your cries. My shoulder to lean on when your burdens on your shoulder to heavy, and you feel like you first to stumble. My wisdom and knowledge to help you navigate through the trenches we face in life. And you ask, what can I do for you while I'm locked up. I'll give you enough love to where you no for a fact if I could, I'll give you the world!!!
About the Author

Mr. Don Gotti III "The Voice of The Ghetto!" was born Derenick Scott out of North Little Rock, Arkansas. He's an inmate who is now focusing on teaching the youth. He is focused on using his voice to keep the black youth from falling asleep again. He has just published a book called: "Fighting the Corruption In the midst of Arkansas Prisons and Court Systems." He currently is working on publishing his next two novels. "The State of mind of a Convicts Conscious!" and "In the midst of the struggle."
